Manufacturing

Connecticut, especially the Waterbury and Danbury region, has a rich manufacturing history and is poised for another growth era. Opportunities are available in numerous manufacturing processes.

Production occupations are no longer the dirty sweat shop or the “Lucille Ball candy assembly line” jobs. Today’s manufacturing methods require knowledgeable and highly skilled workers. Training is extremely important to the future of manufacturing.

Whether you are new to the manufacturing industry or are seeking to change or improve your position in the industry, NVCC has courses designed to fit your needs. We are committed to providing the educational and training opportunities that will meet the needs of the manufacturers in our region.

Naugatuck Valley Community College is excited to offer select manufacturing courses on our NVCC campus in Waterbury, at Henry Abbott Technical School in Danbury, and W.F. Kaynor Technical School in Waterbury.

In association with our Advanced Manufacturing Technology Center, we are proud to offer the following:

- ❑ Blueprint Reading
- ❑ Manufacturing Math I
- ❑ Metrology
- ❑ OSHA Safety
- ❑ Tool & Die and Metal Stamping
- ❑ CNC I - Basics
- ❑ Principles of Lean & Quality Control
- ❑ Introduction to Lean and Quality Control
- ❑ Quality Control Inspection
